Comer carries county, state GOP bid goes down to the wire

About 23 percent of the registered voters in Clinton County took the time out of their schedule Tuesday to find their way to one of Clinton County's 13 voting precincts to make their choice of candidates they preferred to represent their respective political party in this fall's general election.

In the race that saw the most activity in Clinton County, the Republican primary for Kentucky Governor, the team of Jamie Comer and Chris McDaniel were the heavy favorites, winning all 13 precincts here by a heavy margin over the three other teams seeking that party's nomination

The Comer/McDaniel finished local voting with a total of 1,358 votes to earn a huge margin over the next closest team of candidates for Governor and Lt. Governor, Matt Bevin and Jenean Hampton, which finished in Clinton County with 106 votes.

In third place, Hal Heiner and K.C. Crosbie netted some 65 votes while Will T Scott/Rodney Coffey team picked up 28 votes across Clinton County in the primary.

Jamie Comer, the current Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture, who is from nearby Tompkinsville, built a strong base in Clinton County among Republican voters, as was evident not only in the number of Comer/McDaniel yard signs evident across the county, but in the margin of votes earned Tuesday as well.

Across the state, with Bevin appearing to hold a slight lead, late vote reports from central Kentucky time zone counties, moved Comer to within just a few votes, late Tuesday night, Comer had actually moved into a slight lead and appeared perhaps to have captured the Republican nomination, before a late reporting precinct put Bevin back in front by just a handful of votes, making it too close to call at press deadline.

With 99 percent of the precincts from across Kentucky reporting,

Proposed new marina at Rowena Landing is back on the COE table

The on again off again proposed new commercial marina at Rowena Landing on Lake Cumberland, is "on again" according to notice issued last week by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

With this latest announcement that was dated May 8, 2015 and issued from the Nashville District office of the COE, the size of the proposed facility has also apparently grown more than two-fold from it's original plan that was initially 162 acres, including 48 acres of water and 114 acres of land.

Last week's announcement notes that the proposed facility, which will be referred to officially as the Watauga location, now is made up of 353 acres of land and an additional 54 acres of water for a total project size of 407 acres.

According to the notice, the new facility, if the project should ever come to be, would likely include, but not necessarily be limited to, a marina, fuel dock, restaurant and waste-water disposal facility.

Located at the end of Hwy. 558, most of the new facility's acreage is actually located in neighboring Russell County, Kentucky.

However, access to the site by land can only be made by driving through Clinton County on Hwy. 558 to reach the area which includes what is now known as Rowena Landing, a popular boat launching site and swimming area used almost exclusively by local residents.

Currently, the area is completely undeveloped and is only a road - Hwy. 558 - that leads into Lake Cumberland, about 15 miles north of Albany and about one-half mile across the Clinton County and Russell County line.

Plans to investigate the possibility of locating a new commercial marina were first announced in August, 2010.

In January 2012, the Clinton County News reported that the Corps had announced it was soliciting proposals for the new marina and would be accepting lease applications for the development and operation that was then referred to as Rowena Landing South.

When that announcement was made, the Corps noted that should a proposal be accepted, the commercial concession lease would have been awarded by April 1, 2013.

When that April 1, 2013 date came and went without any action regarding the proposed new marina being taken, the project sat in limbo until January, 2014, when the

Clinton native Phil Huddleston's career has him now serving in Lt. Governor's office

As Clinton County voters headed to the polls in near record low numbers this week to decide on the candidates that will represent the two main parties in this fall's election for the top offices in Kentucky, most local voters don't realize that a Clinton County native is currently on the job in Frankfort, inside the state's second highest government office.

Last November, when former Kentucky Auditor of Public Accounts Crit Luallen, was tagged by Governor Steve Beshear to replace Jerry Abramson as his Lt. Governor, the long-time politician began putting together her staff that would work along side her for the two years she would likely be serving as the state's second highest official.

As a part of her staff, she needed a "right-hand man" so to speak in the position of her Chief of Staff, and her search didn't go on for long.

Luallen quickly reached out for one of the longest serving and best known names in Frankfort - a Clinton County native son - Phil Huddleston.

While many local residents of the Baby Boomer age are very familiar with Huddleston and his Clinton County heritage, many others who are younger were likely unaware that the Chief of Staff for Kentucky's second highest government official, grew

Matt Stainbrook speaks to Lady Dawg, Bulldog basketball players Xavier star led Musketeers to NCAA Sweet 16, became 'media sweetheart'

Players from both the Lady Bulldogs and Bulldogs basketball squads at Clinton County High School were given a rare treat last week, hearing briefly from a nationally recognized sports figure.

Matt Stainbrook, the 6'10" senior center for the Xavier Musketeers mens' basketball team, spoke briefly to the group of about 40 basketball players and others last Friday afternoon.

Stainbrook, who led the Xavier Musketeers to the Sweet 16 round of the men's NCAA Basketball tournament this past March, spoke for about 30 minutes to the high school students.

During that informal gathering, Stainbrook gave a brief overview of his college career at Xavier, talked about some of the conditioning and practice routines he and his teammates went through in the Xavier basketball program, and talked a little about what he hopes will be his future in professional basketball.

Stainbrook became one of the most recognizable figures to emerge from last spring's NCAA tournament, the subject of several breakout feature segments that dealt with his on court dedication as well as his off-court practices.

He stressed to the group the importance of staying in shape in

Wright receives Bluegrass scholarship

Bluegrass Cellular has announced the recipients from the 2015 Bluegrass Cellular Scholarship Program, the company's annual initiative to support local, college-bound high school seniors.

Clinton County High School senior Brooke Wright was one of 15 students from the Central Kentucky area who will each be awarded a $1,500 scholarship.

Wright, the daughter of of Sandra Wright and Todd Wright, is a member of the 2014-15 C.C.H.S. graduating class.

"As in years past, we had a number of bright young students apply for the scholarship program, which is a very encouraging thing to see, even if it makes our selection committee's decision that much harder," said Barry Nothstine, Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Bluegrass Cellular. "Thank you to all who applied, and congratulations to this year's recipients! We wish you the best of luck in all your future endeavors."

Snow White playing at Good Neighbors Theatre

Snow White is the final show in the Good Neighbors Theatre 2014-2015 Season.

GNT is located at 8780 Highway 111 Byrdstown, TN. Dates of the production are: Friday, May 29; Saturday, May 30; Friday, June 5; and Saturday, June 6 – all at 7 pm. Sunday matinees will be Sunday, May 31 and Sunday, June 7 at 2 pm.

The story of Snow White is known around the world and there are many versions similar to the one made famous in Grimm's Fairy Tales with the line, "Mirror, Mirror on the wall...". Everyone knows the rest of this line, but did you know these facts about the Evil Queen?

In a version from Albania, the beginning of the story has a twist, in that a teacher urges the heroine to kill her evil step-mother so that she would take her place. The origin of this tale is debated; and possibly dates to the Middle Ages.

Bidasari is a Malay tale written around 1750 A.D which tells the story of a witch queen who asks her magic mirror about the prettiest lady in the kingdom.

The Indian epic poem Padmavat (1540) includes the line: "Who is more beautiful, I or Padmavati?" Queen Nagamati asks her new parrot, and it gives a displeasing reply.

Nourie Hadag from Armenia was the daughter of a woman who asked the Moon, "Who is the most beautiful in the world?", and the response is always "Nourie Hadag". The mother plots to kill her daughter.

In their first edition of Grimm's Fairy Tales in the tale of Snow White, the Brothers Grimm portrayed the villain of the piece as Snow White's jealous mother.

Additionally, in an earlier version of the story, the queen does not order a servant to take her to the woods, but takes her there herself to gather flowers and abandons her; in their next edition, this task was transferred to a servant.

It is believed that the change to a step-mother in later editions was to tone down the story for children. Also, in the original book, the wicked queen dies after being forced to dance in red-hot iron shoes.

Rest assured, the version playing at Good Neighbors Theatre is the family-friendly story everyone loves to see and hear and promises to be an evening all will enjoy with children portraying the parts of the Dwarfs, local teens as Snow White and the Huntsman/Prince.

order to be able to put in the best performance on the court, and the importance of combining the proper diet with conditioning habits.

After arriving at Xavier on a transfer from Western Michigan, Stainbrook began a conditioning program that saw him lose some 50 pounds, hitting the court for the Musketeers last season at 270 pounds.

On the court, he led the Musketeers to a 23-14 season record, a runner-up finish in the Big East tournament, a run to the Sweet 16 round of the NCAA men's basketball tournament, being named Big East Player of the Week and being named to the East-West All Star lineup that played on the Final Four floor in Indianapolis during the championship weekend.

Off the court, Stainbrook gave up his scholarship in his final year to become a walk-on player for the Musketeers squad, so his younger brother, Tim, who was a player with Xavier with walk-on status, could have the full playing scholarship.

In order to earn extra money to help with college expenses, Stainbrook became a UBER driver and that storyline was the subject of articles and features across the nation including a special ESPN report that was aired during the NCAA basketball tournament.

Matt's brother, Tim Stainbrook, traveled to Albany with him and was on hand during Friday's program as well.

Stainbrook said he will travel to Boston next week to spend several weeks working out and training in hopes of making the NBA draft on some level, and he also said he could find himself playing professional basketball in Europe if his NBA hopes didn't pan out.

He also spent time after the gathering touring the playing court area, conditioning facilities, and the boys' varsity locker room before leaving.

Stainbrook is a frequent visitor to the area in the summer months, spending time on Dale Hollow Lake.

which included the classified hiring of Gatha Thompson as cook at the middle school; the classified resignation of Sue Riddle as bus driver; and substitute teachers hired, district-wide, Brittany Smith and Hannah Campbell.

After a presentation from school insurance representatives with Robert’s Insurance Company, the board voted to approve Zurick Insurance (Robert’s Insurance) as the provider for Student School Accident Insurance at a cost of approximately $40,513.20, which includes a 10-year catastrophic benefit of $7.5 million per student effective for the 2015-16 school year.

The board also approved a school package umbrella policy and automobile policy in the amount of $119,642.91 but tabled action until next month on the Workers’ Compensation policy.

Salary schedules for the 2015-16 school year for certified and classified employees and substitute teachers were approved, each including the state mandated two percent raise and they also approved the pay dates for school employees from July 2015 through June 2016 and approved the schedule for extended employment and extra increment pay for the next school term.

They then approved the annual declaration for an emergency for substitute teachers, which requires a certified transcript with no less than 64 college hours and a grade point average of no less than 2.5 on a 4.0 scale.

The board then approved and amended to BG #4 (buildings and grounds) to submit to the Kentucky Department of Education for replacement of one cooling tower at Albany Elementary, two HVAC units at CCHS and eight units at the Early Childhood Center, in the amount of $187,406 and also approved closeout forms on those projects.

Also approved Monday night was the FY 2016 Mathematics Achievement grant in the amount of $41,000; Forward Edge Associates to provide drug testing for students and employees for the 2015-16 year; renewed the contract with One Call Now for the next school year at a cost of $1.19 per student with a three-year commitment; renewed membership with the Chamber of Commerce at $50 annually and approved a shortened school day for one student with disabilities at Clinton County Middle School.

The board then took another step to possibly seeing a connector road to the new bypass and old 127 from the middle school, contingent upon grant funds being available for construction.

The board voted to declare the Clinton County Middle School Connector Road as surveyed to be surplus property and approving a deed of conveyance, conveying the subject property to the Clinton Fiscal Court in consideration of the fiscal court expending necessary funds to construct and maintain subject roadway for the benefit of the Clinton County School System and to authorize the president, Paula Key, to sign the deed of conveyance, all subject to approval from the KDE (Kentucky Department of Education) District Facilities Branch.

They then approved an amendment regarding authorization of Capital Outlay funds from $96,578 to $102,984; approved the 2015-16 tentative budget

(general fund) in the amount of $13,961,650 and approved the following school trips:

- * Overnight trip for the volleyball team to attend the Western Kentucky University Volleyball Camp July 10-12;
- * Beyond Base Ten Summer Youth Camp for grades 1-5 to Lexington on June 13;
- * Gear Up students to participate in the Western Kentucky University Camp Innovate June 29-July 3.

Julie York, Director of Pupil Personnel, then gave the monthly attendance report for the eighth month of school, April 1 through 28.

Attendance for the month was up by almost eight tenths of a percent, from 93.87 last year to 94.65 this year in overall ADA. The school with the most improved and highest Average Daily attendance was once again Albany Elementary with an ADA for the month at 95.64 percent.

The board then entered into a closed session hearing to consider possible disciplinary action or expulsion of an AES student with no formal action being announced.

The school board is scheduled to hold a work session on Thursday, June 11 at 4:30 p.m. and next regular business meeting Monday, June 15 at 5 p.m. at the Central Office and both are open to the public.

Demoralized State of Mind

Def. - Demoralize: to corrupt in morals.
John 10:10 says - The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill and to destroy.

Satan brought T.V. in slow and easy, with shows the Christian base would accept. And slowly but surely he perverted T.V. , a little at a time, making sure the Christian base would take the bait. And they did! Satan used T.V. to demoralize church going people.

And when Satan created internet, the world wide web, reaching to every demonic spirit in the world, it gave young people web sites with every demonic symbol and teaching them how to make bombs.

Satan has control over the preachers that are blind to his demoralizing tactics and his weapons of mass confusion, disarming people from prayer and Bible study.

Church people have fell in love with a demoralizing state of mind. Satan’s music and song is also demoralizing the young Christian base, the church of tomorrow.

II Tim. 4:3 - For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but after their “own lusts” shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears.

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK Monticello

A Wayne County couple indicted on sexual abuse charges were arraigned in circuit court on Tuesday, May 5.

John and Jacqueline Fawcett both entered not guilty pleas during the appearance. The two were jointly indicted for three counts of sodomy first degree and three counts of incest.

John Fawcett was also indicted for three other counts of incest and three counts of first degree rape. Jacqueline Fawcett was additionally indicted for three counts of complicity to rape first degree and three counts of complicity to incest.

All charges involve a victim under the age of 12. According to the indictment, charges stem from alleged incidents that occurred from 2012 to 2014. The investigation into the sexual abuse allegations were conducted by Kentucky State Police.

The indictments against the couple were returned by a local grand jury in April. Jacqueline Fawcett turned herself in to local authorities in March. John Fawcett fled the area and was arrested on April 10 in Panama City, Florida on an unrelated drug charge.

A pre-trial conference in the case has been set for June 9 in Wayne Circuit Court.

Wayne County High School boys basketball stand-out Peyton Woods added another award to his collection.

Woods picked up another accolade after he was recently named to the Kentucky All-Stars boys' basketball team.

He was among the 13 top high school boys' basketball players picked for the squad, which will take on the Indiana All-Stars this summer.

The prolific Cardinal guard earned many other honors over his high school career, including when he was recently named to the USA Today 2015 All-State Basketball First Team.

Woods earned that honor after he shot 40.9 percent from the three-point line and netted the most three-pointers in the state this past season after he drilled 108 three pointers.

He finished his high school career as Wayne County's second leading scorer with 2,467 total points and had 362 career three-pointers, which ranked him fourth in state history.

Woods and his Kentucky All-Star teammates will have beating the Indiana All-Stars at the forefront of their minds after the Hoosier team has beaten Kentucky 20 out of the past 21 times.

Indiana has won six games in a row against Kentucky.

The two teams will square off on June 12 at Transylvania University's Beck Center and June 13 at the Bankers Life Fieldhouse in Indianapolis.

The man accused of arson in connection with a 2014 fire at the Wayne County Attorney's Office entered a guilty plea to the charges in circuit court last week.

James Rigney entered the plea on Tuesday, May 5 in conjunction with a plea agreement that was reached with the Commonwealth's Attorney. Rigney was charged with arson second degree, burglary third degree, tampering with physical evidence and theft by unlawful taking under $500 in connection with the May 22, 2014 fire that heavily damaged the office of Wayne County Attorney Tom Simmons.

According to the plea agreement, Rigney received a sentence of 10 years on the arson charge, a sentence of five years on each on the charges of burglary third degree and tampering with physical evidence and 12 months on the theft charge. The last three sentences are to run concurrent with the sentence in the first charge for a total of 10 years.

The sentence will be probated for five years, according to the plea agreement.

The other person charged with the fire, Tasha Brumley, entered a plea agreement in the case in November. She pled guilty to charges of second degree arson, burglary third degree, tampering with physical evidence and theft by unlawful taking under $500. She received a 20 year sentence, which was probated for a period of five years.

Formal sentencing for Rigney has been set for June 23 in Wayne Circuit Court.

TIMES JOURNAL Russell Springs

The Russell County Sheriff's Department made an arrest early Monday, May 11 after a man was found cutting a lock off of a Jamestown Water Department meter.

Deputy David Cain arrested Brian K. Huff, 34, of Jamestown for theft of services at the scene. Huff is accused of trying to obtain water without payment for his residence.

After a search warrant was obtained for Huff's residence, officers discovered evidence that led to additional charges of manufacturing methamphetamine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Following the arrest, Huff was lodged in the Russell County Detention Center at around 11 a.m. on May 11.

More than $27,500 was raised Saturday night, May 9, at the second annual Kevin Williams' Hometown Celebration concert at the First Baptist Church in Russell Springs to benefit the Russell County family resources and youth service centers.

The musical benefit packed the church to capacity with more than 750 people in attendance, who heard a variety of groups and musical acts, highlighted by a special appearance by well-known Gaither musician Buddy Greene. Greene is a mainstay on the Gaither Homecoming TV Series, a multiple Dove award winner and co-writer of "Mary, Did You Know" with Mark Lowry.

"I was blown away with the way the whole community came through for these kids," William said following the event. "Over 27,000 dollars from people who know how to plant seeds for our future generations. Little by little, we are making a difference in the lives of these kids. They are going to have a fighting chance because of the caring people of this community."

Williams said when he was growing up here, he saw how people took care of one another.

"That's all this is," he said. "I think everyone walked out of that building with increased joy and happiness after that concert. When you get outside yourself and give, that's what happens."

Williams said when he spoke to his good friend Buddy Greene about performing at the benefit he said, "Let me know the date. I'll be there."

He said it was hard keeping Greene a secret, and everyone's face lit up when he walked through the door. Greene wowed the crowd with his world-class harmonica playing and touched them with his smash hit.

Phil Carney, the coordinator of the Russell Springs and Salem Family Resource Center, said the money raised would help out many children in the Russell County School District in the months to come.

"It is amazing and I don't know how you put it into words," Carney said. "Sometimes you have these fundraisers you wonder how it is going to turn out but this is beyond my wildest expectations."

Carney credited Williams and all the sponsors for such a great night as well as those who turned out to give to the cause, as well as enjoy the evening's entertainment.

"What a wonderful place to live here in Russell County," he said. "It was fantastic."

Carney will be retiring at the end of the school year but vowed to remain involved in the annual benefit concert each spring.

Russell County Schools Superintendent Michael Ford said the youth service center and family resource centers in Russell County are all about reducing barriers and having a direct impact on student achievement.

"The centers stand in good stead for some of our most vulnerable students," Ford said. "The annual benefit concert that Kevin Williams provides for our youth and family resource centers directly helps those most in need. I can't put into words what Kevin Williams means to Russell County Schools and we certainly appreciate him, Russell Springs First Baptist Church and everyone that makes this annual event so meaningful for our students."

Williams wished to thank all his musical guests for the evening, Buddy Greene, Kevin Moore, Larry Beasley, Crossroads Quarter, Noblemen, and all his Russell County friends he has had the pleasure of making music with from his youth.

"A special thanks to the folks at the First Baptist Church," Williams added. "They've been so supportive of this cause since day one."

As for next year's concert, Williams was definitive with his answer.

"Oh yes, I'm already planning for it."

RUSSELL COUNTY NEWS-REGISTER Russell Springs

The Russell County Sheriff's Department has received a disturbing number of reports in recent weeks and months of scammers targeting senior citizens.

Elder fraud is an act targeting older adults in which attempts are made to deceive with promises of goods, services, or financial benefits that do not exist, were never intended to be provided, or were misrepresented. Financial exploitations is the illegal or improper use of an older adult's funds or property.

Far too many older adults fall prey to scammers who are looking to make a quick buck. Although most of the incidents reported have been attempts at theft or deception, a few persons have been taken advantage of and lost money. The scammers are professional cons and very convincing that their call or letter is legitimate.

Sheriff Clete McAninch recommends the following steps be taken to better protect your money and property:

1. Never sign bank insurance claim forms.
2. Never give blanket permission to a medical provider to bill for services rendered.
3. Ask your medical providers what they will change and what you will be expected to pay out-of-pocket.
4. Carefully review your insurer's explanation of the benefits statement. Call your insurer and provider if you have questions.
5. Do not do business with door-to-door or telephone salespeople who tell you that services of medical equipment are free.
6. Give your insurance/Medicare identification only to those who have provided you with medical services.
7. Keep accurate records of all health care appointments.
8. Know if your physician ordered equipment for you.

Medicare Scams:

1. Protect your Medicare number as you do your credit card numbers and do not allow anyone else to use it.
2. Be wary of salespeople trying to sell you something they claim will be paid for by Medicare.

Review your Medicare statements to be sure you have in fact received the services billed.

4. Report suspicious activities to 1-800-MEDICARE.

Telemarketing Sams:

1. Don't buy from an unfamiliar company.
2. Always ask for and wait until you receive written material about any offer or charity.
3. Obtain a person's name, business identity, telephone number, street address, mailing address, and business license number before you transact business.

4. Always take your time in making a decision.

5. If you have information about a fraud, report it to state, local, or federal law enforcement agencies.

Home Repair or Contractor Fraud:

1. Be an informed consumer. Take the time to call and shop around before making a purchase. Take a friend with you who may offer some perspective to help you make difficult decisions.

2. Carefully read all contracts and purchasing agreements before signing and make certain that all of your requirements have been put in writing.

3. Make sure you understand all contract cancellation and refund terms.

4. As a general rule take control of all your transactions as a consumer.

5. Do not allow yourself to be pressured into making purchases, signing contracts, or committing funds. These decisions are yours and yours alone.

If you suspect you've encountered financial abuse, don't be afraid or embarrassed to talk about it with someone you trust. You are not alone, and there are people who can help. Doing nothing could only make it worse. Keep handy the phone numbers and resources you can turn to, including the local police, your bank (if money has been taken from your accounts), and Adult Protective Services.

THE HERALD CITIZEN Cookeville, TN

Two men who are already serving time in federal prison on other charges have also pleaded guilty to second degree murder in Putnam County Criminal Court.

James Troy Tabor, 24, and Michael Casey O'Howell, 23, pleaded guilty recently to the January 2010 shooting death of Franklin Todd Crabtree in a Carr Avenue apartment building.

That shooting, which also injured but did not kill another man, resulted from an illegal drug transaction, say Cookeville Police Department investigators who investigated the case.

"As the investigation progressed, several suspects were developed," said Lt. Carl Sells, a detective at the Cookeville Police Department.

The department was unable to make an arrest, however, because it lacked enough evidence to proceed with charging any of the suspects in the crime.

"During the course of the murder investigation, the (Tabor and O'Howell) suspects were involved in other illegal activities that subsequently resulted in their being sent to federal prison," Lt. Sells said.

During the joint Cookeville Police Department and federal law enforcement investigation, however, additional evidence about that 2010 murder was obtained, and that additional evidence allowed the Cookeville Police Department to proceed with the prosecution of Tabor and O'Howell for the murder of Crabtree.

The Putnam County Grand Jury indicted the two on first degree murder charges in December 2013.

"The District Attorney General's office arranged for extradition from federal custody last week, and the suspects both pleaded guilty to second degree murder," Lt. Sells said.

Tabor and O'Howell each received a 17-year sentence, 100 percent of which they will be serving concurrent to the federal sentences they were already serving.

"Even though they are already serving lengthy federal sentences, the Cookeville Police Department and District Attorney General's office believed it was necessary to hold them accountable for the crimes they had committed in our community," Lt. Sells said.

Assistant District Attorney Beth Willis worked on the case.

up in north Albany on U.S. 127. The Clinton County News worked with Huddleston over the past few weeks through a series of emails in an effort to bring our readers a look at the success of one of our own who left years ago, but still considers home to be his beloved Clinton County. “I still think of that stretch of roadway as God’s Country” Huddleston told the Clinton County News when remembering his youth on U.S. 127. “ I had aunts, uncles, and cousins that lived along that roadside for miles. I am happy that some of my cousins still do. ” Huddleston, who now lives in Frankfort with his wife Pat, was the son of the late Earl F. and Maida Huddleston. Huddleston’s early years in Albany and Clinton County likely molded his public service lifestyle as an adult, as his father was a Clinton County Sheriff and later a Clinton County Judge in the late 1950s and early 1960s. He has two siblings, a sister, Linda Barnett, who retired after working approximately 40 years at the Albany office of South Kentucky RECC and still lives in Clinton County with her husband Keith. His brother, Doug Huddleston, lives in Bronston, Kentucky and is retired from the United State Homeland Security Agency. Huddleston’s wife, Patricia Moreland Huddleston, is also a native of Clinton County and retired as Branch Manager of Policy Development for The Cabinet for Families and Children. She is the daughter of the late Sam and Ila Moreland. They have one daughter Joy (Brian) Kiser, a granddaughter, Lauren. and a grandson, Grant. The life of a public servant was also instilled deeply with Huddleston’s sister, Linda Barnett, who has served several terms as a volunteer member of the Clinton County Library Board. The history with the Clinton County Public Library and the Huddleston family is about as long as is possible here as he remembered the history his father had as County Judge in working with the first Clinton County Librarian to secure the first library, located above the Albany Volunteer Fire Department where the Albany Police Headquarters is now located. Huddleston still recognizes the importance of a good, strong public library in a small community. “Libraries are another source that is vital to the well-being of people,” Huddleston said. “If I recall correctly, Mrs. Eloise and my Dad came to Frankfort to get the funding to establish the first housing of the library that was on the second floor over the old Albany Fire Station.” Huddleston, whose mother passed away just last August, recalled just how valuable the adult generation of his childhood experiences were to him and his entire generation. “The generation before us are now all deceased,” he said. “That was the generation that instilled the principles of honesty, a solid work ethic, and good, contributing citizenship.” Huddleston’s education began as the only first grade student in the one-room school setting at Hopkins School, a facility located just north of the Albany City Limits and still stands today in a preserved museum style state, on it’s original location adjacent to the Mountain View Recreation park. “What a wonderful place,” he said, remembering the Hopkins School experience. “Miss Madge Smith taught all eight grades, and she was an amazing, inspiring educator of the highest caliber.” Huddleston said he attended school in Clinton County for 11 of his 12 post-secondary education years, adding that his parents moved to Monticello in 1968, and after his senior year there, he graduated from the Monticello Independent School system in 1969. “I have never lived outside Kentucky, but have now lived in several locations in the state,” Huddleston said. “However, the move from Clinton County and leaving my friends and family was difficult for me.” He says that his parents, like most parents of that generation, stressed the importance of acquiring a good education, adding that it was the determination of his parents and other parents of that era, that their children were going to school to learn, be respectful and appreciative. “In addition to the two of them and my great-aunt Thursie Traylor, I have to thank the superb teachers that I had throughout my career for imparting to me the skills that I have employed in making a living,” he said. Huddleston recalled several teachers from the Clinton County school system that he credited for giving him the firm educational foundation that he built his career on, including Lillian Nolan, Clayton Brown, Mary Ellen Summers, Ruby Nell Upchurch, Marie Robinson, and Madge Smith. “They were gifted, dedicated, tireless educators. I owe them every day that I earn a salary and appreciate the contribution that they have made to my life,” he said. Huddleston also pointed out that as important as the building that houses the school is, more important to a student’s education is what goes on inside those walls. “Hopkins School is a sterling example of how quality education is not a product of the building in which one is taught, but rather, what is imparted between those four walls,” he noted. After high school, and attending Berea College and Western Kentucky University, where he majored in business administration, Huddleston embarked on his career in public service, beginning with his first position in 1974, as a social worker in Wayne County. He worked for the Cabinet for Human Resources (now the Cabinet for Health and Family Services) in Wayne, Pulaski, and Fayette counties and, in 1978, became a program specialist in the central office of the Cabinet in Frankfort. Huddleston joined the Legislative Research Commission in 1980, working on several levels including as a program analyst, director of constituent services, and a stint as the Chief of Staff to the Kentucky Senate President. In 2002, he moved to the Kentucky League of Cities until 2007, working as policy analyst and legislative liaison. In that capacity, he worked closely with local officials in addressing the needs of communities across the state and promoting economic growth to improve the quality of life for Kentuckians. Twice during his career in Kentucky’s government structure, he was forced to put his career on hold - the first time to help his siblings care for his aging father, and the second time with the same situation surrounding his mother, who passed away just last August. Throughout his career, he has also served in a host of volunteer positions in the communities where he has lived, including on the Salvation Army Board of Directors, the Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, the Selective Service Board, the Board of the Kentucky Book Fair, and many other charitable and civic organizations. “I returned to work for Ken-tucky’s legislative branch of government in 2011 as chief of staff to Representative Tommy Thompson, the House Majority Whip,” Huddleston said But it was just last winter when he moved even higher up the career ladder, reaching the pinnacle - so far - of working alongside Lt. Governor Luallen. “I am excited and tremendously honored to have been asked to work for Lt. Governor Crit Luallen,” Huddleston said of his relatively new position in Kentucky government. “She has worked her way through the ranks of Kentucky State Government earning the respect and admiration of Kentuckians far and wide.” Still proud to be a Kentuckian, and even more so of his Clinton County roots, Huddleston’s pride for the Bluegrass State and his memories of early years in this community he still calls home, go back to his early childhood years and his start here. Additionally, this article won’t be the first time one of Huddleston’s accomplishments has been showcased in the pages of the Clinton County News. “When I was in the 7th grade, your Dad (Clinton County News founder, the late A.B. Gibson) ran a picture of me being presented a $25 Treasury Bond when I won first place in an essay contest on ‘The Beauty of Kentucky’ sponsored by Harvey Qualls’ Service Station,” Huddleston recalled in an earlier email. “Those and these are the good ole days.”

WINS BOND — Harvey Qualls presents a $25.00 Savings Bond to Phillip F. Huddleston, winner in Harvey’s “Exploring Kentucky Contest.” Phillip is the son of Judge and Mrs. Earl F. Huddleston.

Essay winner

Phil Huddleston’s love of his native Kentucky began with his early years when he lived in Albany. This clipping of a photo that appeared in the July 23, 1964 issue of the Clinton County News, shows a young Huddleston accepting a $25 United States Savings Bond from Albany businessman Harvey Qualls. The bond was a first place prize for an essay contest that had been sponsored by Qualls’ local business, Harvey’s Service Station (located where Advance Auto is currently situated). Huddleston’s winning essay was titled “What I Love About Living in Kentucky.”

Comer held a slight lead of only 30 votes, 69,680 to Bevin's 69,650 votes, before Bevin again moved ahead to hold a slim 122 vote lead.

Whichever GOP team finishes final vote tabulations in front and survives any possible recounts to win the republican nomination, he and his running mate will face Democrats Jack Conway, the current Kentucky Attorney General, and his Lt. Governor running mate, Sannie Overly, who won easily in Tuesday's primary election both in Clinton County as well as across the entire state.

Here, the Conway/Overly team earned 128 votes from Clinton County voters to just 25 votes for the team of Geoffrey Young and Johnathan Masters.

Conway, who was considered to have only token opposition from the Young/Masters pair, spoke to his party to accept the victory just 18 minutes after polls had closed in the central time zone Kentucky counties.

Republican voters also had three other choices to make in Tuesday's primary voting, including the race for the party nomination for Attorney General.

In that contest, Whitney Westerfield picked up the most Clinton County votes with 784 to 455 votes for Michael T. Hogan.

Across the state, with 85 percent of the Kentucky precincts reporting, Westerfield had also won the Republican nod, with more than 84,400 votes to Hogan's 74,350 votes.

Westerfield will face Democrat Andrew Beshear, who was unopposed in Tuesday's primary.

In the race for State Treasurer, Clinton County Republican favored Allison Ball, who earned 561 votes over two opponents, Jon Larson who finished locally with 375 votes and Kenneth Imes with 237 votes.

Ball also won the Republican nomination in state-wide voting over her two opponents, and will face Democrat nominee Rick Nelson, who was that party's favorite in Clinton County earning 52 votes to just 30 votes for Neville Blakemore, 22 votes for Richard Henderson, 18 votes for Jim Glenn and 16 votes for Daniel Grossberg.

In statewide voting, with 97 of 120 counties reporting, Nelson was leading in that race and was projected to be the Democrat nominee.

In the race for the Republican nominee for Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture, Clinton County voters heavily favored Ryan F. Quarles who earned 765 votes over his challenger, Richard Heath, who finished here with 499 votes.

Across Kentucky, voting in that race was much tighter, with Quarles holding a narrow lead at press deadline.

The Republican nominee will face Democrat Jean-Marie Lawson Spann in the fall general

In the race for Kentucky Secretary of State, only the Democrats had a choice Tuesday, and it was Allison Lundergan Grimes, the incumbent, who received the voter nod both locally and statewide.

In Clinton County, Grimes picked up 127 votes over just 26 votes for challenger Charles Lovett.

In statewide voting, Grimes easily won over Lovett as well, and this fall will face Republican challenger Steve Knipper, who was unopposed in Tuesday's primary election.

Tuesday's election tabulation event in the office of Clinton County Clerk Shelia Booher, was one of the smallest election night gatherings in recent history, a typical occurrence when no local races are found on the election ballot.

The first precinct of the 13 county voting locations to report to the courthouse was South Albany, bringing totals in at 6:07 p.m., just seven minutes after the polls had closed, while the last precinct to bring it's election materials into the clerk's office was Piney Woods, who reported at 6:41 p.m.

Readers are reminded that all vote totals noted in this article are unofficial, as are the vote totals shown in the accompanying table.

TURNOVERS

ALAN B. GIBSON

First of the ‘big three’ is here - head’s up, it’s going to be a busy summer

Hard to believe it and it seems to come around quicker and quicker every year, but next week we’ll salute another graduating class from Clinton County High School, and this weekend, the annual summer tourism season kicks off with the arrival of Memorial Day.

That said, here goes with my annual reminder to our local residents that with the arrival of the summer travel season this weekend, we need to remember that everything in Albany and Clinton County is going to get a lot busier and a lot more crowded as we welcome thousands of visitors to our area who will be vacationing and hopefully spending lots of money.

Our roadways are going to be more crowded as tourists - most from the northern regions of the country, find our area to enjoy our lakes and countryside for a few days or perhaps longer.

Our waterways are going to be even more noticeably crowded as well with boats, PWCs and swimmers enjoying our two bodies of recreational water, Lake Cumberland and Dale Hollow Lake.

While we may find ourselves aggravated from time to time with this increase in traffic that will be noticeable on our roads and lakes until at least Labor Day, we need to remember that we not only need these folk to come down and fill our resorts this summer, we need to welcome them whenever we get the chance so they will want to come back - again and again.

They bring money, and lots of it, and they buy gas, food, lodging, boat and vehicle repairs and the list goes on and on. That extra influx of money into our local economy means more jobs for our workforce.

We all have a chance to play our part and do what we can to bring these folk back. Give yourself a little extra room, both on the roads as well as on the waterways. Not only do their driving habits leave a lot to be desired compared to our habits, but I guarantee they feel the same way about some of our driving quirks.

If you see a tourist who looks to be lost or having vehicle or boat trouble, stop and lend a friendly hand - or at least some directions.

We’re a small community, but there is room for everyone.

And above all - keep it safe and make it a fun season for everyone.

In the words of Sgt. Phil Esterhaus from one of my favorite television shows - Hill Street Blues . . . “Let’s be careful out there!”

Brief talk from a familiar figure

Our Bulldogs and Lady Bulldog basketball players and a few others were treated to a special appearance last Friday afternoon at Clinton County High School.

Matt Stainbrook, the starting center for the Xavier University Musketeers, was in Albany at my request, to spend a few minutes telling our players about some of the experiences he has enjoyed the past two years playing for the Cincinnati area university.

We met Matt a few years ago when he was visiting with some of our lake friends on Dale Hollow and we have become good friends.

When he led Xavier to this spring’s Sweet 16 run in the NCAA tournament, as well as playing on the East -West All Star game on Final Four weekend, I began reaching out to get Matt to make a stopover at CCHS the next time he was headed to Dale Hollow.

In addition to his media attention from his basketball talents, Matt also became a “media sweetheart” of sorts this past spring, grabbing headlines, breakout network features and appearances on radio and television shows throughout the tournament stretch.

Matt and his brother, Tim, who also plays for Xavier, spent a long stretch Friday in Albany, talking with the players, as well as touring the basketball facilities and getting to know the coaching staff.

He was impressed, not only with our students and staff, but with our facilities as well, and he enjoyed sharing his experiences and knowledge with our players. An additional article and photos about Matt’s appearance here are on page 1 this week.

Of course, his appearance wasn’t completely without some sort of payment.

As is usually the case when he’s in the area, on Saturday afternoon, Matt and his brother found themselves on my back deck, just about the same time the chicken wings were coming off the grill.

Wearing a blue and white Clinton County Bulldogs cap, Matt and Tim only had to be told once to “help yourself.”

At 6’ 10” and 270 pounds, he’s looked up to as a giant, but from the time we’ve been able to enjoy knowing him, he’s best described as a “gentle giant” - and an all around fantastic young man.

Next on Matt’s agenda is several weeks of training in Boston in hopes of preparing for a selection on some level in the upcoming NBA draft, which will hopefully lead to a spot on a NBA team or an opportunity to play professional basketball overseas.

Good luck Matt, and thanks for sharing. I’ll keep the wings hot!

From Mousie in Knott County, Everyman knows his basketball

Tribute this week, to a Kentucky Everyman fan.

“Born and raised in a house full of basketball talk,” an e-mail said.

William Sparkman is among those who have lived longer, witnessed the parade of winning teams at Kentucky longer and watched from a special place on our map.

“I was born and raised in Mousie, Kentucky (Knott County).” Sparkman wrote.

Typical citizen in Big Blue Nation. Expertise honed by experience, common sense and time, his brand is higher quality than all who have sold out to one and done.

Sparkman’s affection for UK hoops seems not measured by money, celebrity and hype, but style, priorities, and skilled team men dating to his favorite coach, Adolph Rupp.

And this: “My dad would turn the game on (teevee), then listen to Cawood Ledford on radio,” he said. “Cawood would tell it like it was. ... I miss those days.”

The pause from the man from Mousie, reminded me our game has changed so dramatically an NCAA official said the other day, “we’ve got to make some changes to make our game watchable again.”

Watchable again? In Kentucky such words smack of sacrilege.

Sparkman’s UK favorites tell a story too: Dan Issel, Anthony Davis, Kenny Walker, Mike Casey, Tony Delk, Pat Riley, Kyle Macy, Jamal Mashburn, Sam Bowie and John Wall. Dedicated team men.

“I could go on forever with this list,” he said, “But if I coached a team I would want these 10.”

Finally, Sparkman had an issue to air. “... of all the great players at UK only one has been player of the year. (Anthony) Davis. ... This year Willie (Cauley-Stein) was the best player in the nation. No question!”

Ironically, Sparkman’s view is supported by best-there-ever-was Larry Bird. The Indiana Pacers exec told Cauley-Stein last week, he believes the ex-UK star is a $100 million player.

Sparkman is Everyman. From Mousie in Knott County, we can almost hear Sparkman’s amen to that.

PLUG IN APPROACH

For Kentucky, and to more a wait-and-see for Louisville, our state’s college basketball powers are projected among rankings high flyers again in 2015-16.

Considering UK sent half its roster into the job market last month, and came up zero-for-seven on 5-star recruits in the spring, how can Kentucky be a top five team in preseason polls?

Name recognition aside, it’s the plug-in factor.

Having lost recruits Cheick Diallo and Carlton Bragg (to Kansas), Jaylen Brown (California), Malik Newman (Mississippi State), and Steve Zimmerman (UNLV), Kentucky can plug in Skal Labissiere at center, Mychal Mulder at shooting guard, and Isaiah Briscoe anywhere and a promising nucleus – Alex Poythress, Marcus Lee and Tyler Ulis – merits a top ranking for the Wildcats again.

One certainty, after not winning an NCAA title with an all-star team last year, Kentucky’s coach had better be primed for Big Blue fans who expect him to “... show us something!” this time around.

Louisville. A mostly (new) team that could crash and burn, more likely will rise again under its Hall of Fame coach. If the Cardinals succeed, Rick Pitino will be back in demand to write another how-to book.

SIGN OF THE APOCALYPSE?

University of Kentucky and its men’s basketball coach are discussing a one-year, $8 million contract extension.

Through 2022, it would pay the ball coach $54 million and replace a seven-year $52.5 million contract signed last June. Additionally, five weeks from now a longevity bonus kicks in at $1.6 million.

Odd, how media herd types report with enthusiasm gargan-tuans amounts of money going into pockets of athletes, administrators and ball coaches, but never an investigative look into how they spend it.

KANSAS ‘HAUL’

When Kentucky suits up at Lawrence, Kansas January 30, Wildcat coaches will see familiar faces wearing Jayhawk whites. Decisions of three prime recruits came down to UK and KU. And KU signed all three – power forwards Cheick Diallo and Carlton Bragg and guard LeGerald Vick who picked Kansas over Kentucky last weekend.

Why would 6-4, 180-pound Vick choose Kansas over Kentucky? Maybe four reasons – shootist Mychal Mulder, and Dominique Hawkins, Charles Mathews and Isaiah Briscoe who will earn time taking pride in playing defense.

KENTUCKY FANS

Always interesting how Kentucky fans hasten to over-react at any hint of slight against the Wildcats.

Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim, in a fund raiser speech last week put tongue-in-cheek and said, “... ‘If you have to coach in Kentucky, they should pay you eight million dollars.’”

Whereupon, an internet fan web site posted a headline: Boeheim Trashes State of Kentucky in Speech.

Trash a state?

Here came the reactions, predicated first to discredit the messenger.

“Boeheim’s a cheater!” ... “Boeheim is a loser.” ... “Everybody hates us because we’re UK” ... “it’s jealousy!”

But, there is sanity and reason in Big Blue Nation too.

Boeheim’s joke brought these reactions also.

√“(Kentucky’s coach) was in attendance. It was a JOKE! Nobody was trashing Kentucky.”

And this one, that should be chiseled in marble.

√“I think y’all are wound too tight. It was said in good fun. Lighten up BBN.”

And so it goes.

Cub Scouts complete pair of community projects

The Tigers, Wolves, Bears, and Webelos in Albany Cub Scout Pack 387 recently completed two service projects in the community. On Saturday, May 16th, the pack volunteered at Clinton County Care and Rehabilitation Center planting flowers and repairing a bench. Thanks to Penny's Garden Spot for donating the flowers.

Sentencing for a local man who had pled guilty to murder has been delayed and three out-of-state suspects charged with multiple counts of criminal possession of a forged instrument involving stolen or altered credit and debit cards were arraigned during the lengthy May 14 session of Clinton Circuit Court with Judge David L. Williams presiding.

During the scheduled sentencing of Michael E. Thompson, Judge Williams continued the sentencing until June 4 “if the co-defendant, Andrea Byler, enters a plea on that date,” according to court records. If no plea is entered, sentencing will be continued generally until after the co-defendant’s (Byler’s) trial.

The pair is accused in the October 2013 murder of Jimmy Sidwell, Jr., whose body was discovered underneath an unoccupied mobile home in south Albany. The victim died of multiple stab wounds, according to autopsy results.

Early this year, Thompson pled guilty to murder and other charges in an agreement with the Commonwealth and accepted a total 35-year prison sentence. A part of the plea agreement was his truthful testimony against his co-defendant, Andrea Byler.

Byler has had various trial dates already postponed, with the latest continuance being granted on April 9 during a pretrial conference.

A trio of Georgia residents who were arrested in Clinton County on March 19 and subsequently charged and indicted in relation to use of stolen credit and debit cards they used to make large purchases, primarily cigarettes for resale, also appeared in court last Thursday for arraignment.

Belane G. Makonnen, Star A. Brown and Sarr T. Babacar, all whose addresses were listed as being from Georgia, appeared with public advocacy attorney Brad Shuffett. Each defendant is charged with 20 counts of possession of a forged instrument second degree and each waived formal arraignment, entered not guilty pleas and the court set a pretrial conference for all three on July 9.

The following is a listing of cases in circuit court that had some type of resolutions reached, including sentencing, plea agreements, motion ruled on or trial dates scheduled.

* During motion hour, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Anthony W. Wilson.

Upon a plea of guilty to trafficking in marijuana less than eight ounces (three counts) and possession of drug paraphernalia, the defendant would receive a sentence for 45 days in jail and 45 days home incarceration. Upon a plea of guilty to trafficking in marijuana more than eight ounces, the defendant would receive a sentence of four years, probated for four years and would be entitled to work release with the supervision probated for one year. The defendant shall forfeit $21,000 to the Commonwealth and an additional $10,147 prior to final sentencing. A 2005 Pontiac Vibe shall be released to the defendant after final sentencing and guns seized released to a third party. Final sentencing is scheduled for June 4.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Steven R. Daniels.

Upon a plea of guilty to criminal possession of a forged instrument first degree, the defendant shall receive a sentence of five years, serve 55 days in jail, with the balance pretrial diverted for five years with supervision and pay $100 per month in restitution.

The defendant pled guilty to theft by unlawful taking or disposition (controlled substance) with a sentence of three years imposed, probated for three years with supervision and she will receive credit for any time served.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Nathaniel Johnson.

The Commonwealth recommended dismissing the charges of receiving stolen property (firearm) and persistent felony offender first degree (two counts). Upon a plea of guilty to possession of a handgun by a convicted felon, the defendant would serve five years, to run consecutive with another indictment in Clinton Circuit Court.

Final sentencing is scheduled for June 4.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Danny Holman.

Upon a plea of guilty to flagrant non-support, the defendant would receive a sentence of four years, pretrial diverted for five years or until arrearage is paid in full. He shall pay a monthly payment, regular and late support, totaling $351.00.

Connecticut enacts first speed-limit law

May 21, 1901

On this day in 1901, Connecticut becomes the first state to pass a law regulating motor vehicles, limiting their speed to 12 mph in cities and 15 mph on country roads.

Speed limits had been set earlier in the United States for non-motorized vehicles: In 1652, the colony of New Amsterdam (now New York) issued a decree stating that “[N]o wagons, carts or sleighs shall be run, rode or driven at a gallop” at the risk of incurring a fine starting at “two pounds Flemish,” or about $150 in today’s currency. In 1899, the New York City cabdriver Jacob German was arrested for driving his electric taxi at 12 mph. The path to Connecticut’s 1901 speed limit legislation began when Representative Robert Woodruff submitted a bill to the State General Assembly proposing a motor-vehicles speed limit of 8 mph within city limits and 12 mph outside. The law passed in May 1901 specified higher speed limits but required drivers to slow down upon approaching or passing horse-drawn vehicles, and come to a complete stop if necessary to avoid scaring the animals.

On the heels of this landmark legislation, New York City introduced the world’s first comprehensive traffic code in 1903. Adoption of speed regulations and other traffic codes was a slow and uneven process across the nation, however. As late as 1930, a dozen states had no speed limit, while 28 states did not even require a driver’s license to operate a motor vehicle. Rising fuel prices contributed to the lowering of speed limits in several states in the early 1970s, and in January 1974 President Richard Nixon signed a national speed limit of 55 mph into law. These measures led to a welcome reduction in the nation’s traffic fatality rate, which dropped from 4.28 per million miles of travel in 1972 to 3.33 in 1974 and a low of 2.73 in 1983.

Concerns about fuel availability and cost later subsided, and in 1987 Congress allowed states to increase speed limits on rural interstates to 65 mph. The National Highway System Designation Act of 1995 repealed the maximum speed limit. This returned control of setting speed limits to the states, many of which soon raised the limits to 70 mph and higher on a portion of their roads, including rural and urban interstates and limited access roads.

American inventor Morse dispatches telegraph message

May 24, 1844

In a demonstration witnessed by members of Congress, American inventor Samuel F.B. Morse dispatches a telegraph message from the U.S. Capitol to Alfred Vail at a railroad station in Baltimore, Maryland. The message--“What Hath God Wrought?”--was telegraphed back to the Capitol a moment later by Vail. The question, taken from the Bible (Numbers 23:23), had been suggested to Morse by Annie Ellworth, the daughter of the commissioner of patents.

Morse, an accomplished painter, learned of a French inventor’s idea of an electric telegraph in 1832 and then spent the next 12 years attempting to perfect a working telegraph instrument. During this period, he composed the Morse code, a set of signals that could represent language in telegraph messages, and convinced Congress to finance a Washington-to-Baltimore telegraph line. On May 24, 1844, he inaugurated the world’s first commercial telegraph line with a message that was fitting given the invention’s future effects on American life.

Just a decade after the first line opened, more than 20,000 miles of telegraph cable crisscrossed the country. The rapid communication it enabled greatly aided American expansion, making railroad travel safer as it provided a boost to business conducted across the great distances of a growing United States.

Solzhenitsyn returns to Russia

May 27, 1994

Two decades after being expelled from the USSR, Nobel laureate Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn returns to Russia in an emotional homecoming.

In 1945, Solzhenitsyn was sentenced to eight years of hard labor for criticizing Stalin in a letter to a friend. His prison experiences formed the basis for One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich, his famous first novel. In 1970, he was awarded the Nobel Prize in literature and began work on The Gulag Archipelago, his vast history of the Soviet totalitarian system, from Lenin’s ascension to the official Soviet denunciation of Stalin. Foreign publication of this work led to his expulsion from the USSR in 1974, and he settled in the United States. Soviet officials dropped charges of treason against Solzhenitsyn in 1990. One year later, the Soviet Union collapsed and in 1994 Solzhenitsyn returned home. There, he continued writing and often publicly criticized the post-Soviet Russian government.

Solzhenitsyn died of heart failure in Moscow on August 3, 2008. He was 89.

To the voters - Letter to the Editor

I am writing to ask for a favor concerning my Kentucky State Bonus. As you know, last November, 1959, the people of Kentucky were asked to vote on paying all war veterans a State Bonus. This bonus to be financed from a three percent sales tax which you will be paying soon.

Now my problem is this - the present administration using this bonus bill as an aid to secure office, has decided there will not be enough money for all of their pet projects if they pay Kentucky veterans living out of state. To make everything nice and neat, they passed Bill 85, which excludes Kentucky veterans who were not a resident of Kentucky of last November 1959 from the bonus. We are not fighting this bill in the legal courts at Frankfort, Ky.

I urge you to give great thought to this miscarriage of justice when you go to polls for the Spring primary and the general elections next fall. Ask yourself this question, “Can my future be secure in the hands of an administration who will use such methods to secure a political office?”

Please pass this letter or information on to your friends.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor,

Families are joined together by more than their blood shared with mother and father. Spiritual beliefs add more reason to stay together. This was especially true in the lives of the first people to settle in places like our town of Albany.

Our earliest settlers had left behind family to come here to a new land. Trees were cut to build homes and churches, to clear land for crops and pasture. These people were used to going to church on Sunday.

Continuing this excellent habit gave families a feeling of home. They could share their feelings for God, as well as their joys and troubles.

If you have ever watched the TV show "Little House on the Prairie" you learned about the sharing of work. Homes and barns could be built much quicker when all the men and boys of the community worked together. Once everyone had a roof over their heads the church was much needed.

All the families came together to make one big family. People married in the church, took communion there, worshipped there. They were baptized in local water, buried in local ground. Family and community were one.

Even in 2015 we still have homes, schools, and churches giving life to the feeling of human companionship.

Mary C. Albertson
Albany, Kentucky

The family of Carolyn (Duvall) Smith would like to thank each and every one who prayed, called, sent flowers and gave donations. Thanks to the ones who prepared food. A special thanks to the Duvall Valley Pentecostal Church for the food. Special thanks to Bro. Clay Chaplin for the comforting words. Thanks to the pallbearers, Ruby Kay Sheffield, and Haddix Funeral Home. ## Thanks

The family of Nellie Brown would like to thank everyone in the community for loving on her during her illness. We cannot name you all, but you know how you made a difference in her life. Thanks for your prayers, visits, phone calls, and food preparations; it will be hard to forget you. Hospice, you became part of our family and did an awesome job with Mom. We send warm thanks to Bro. Larry Waid and Chaplain Keith McKim for officiating the service; Jewell, Ronnie and Nandry for special music; Talbott Funeral Home who helped make things easier. Also, special thanks to Maupin and Concord United Methodist churches, Beech Bottom Baptist Church, Aaron's Chapel and Gospel Baptist for your loving support. With God underguiding our family every day with His love and putting special people like you in our lives. Life is better. Mom has received her heavenly reward; now we all join together as we continue in the race of life.

In Memory of Kenny Garrett

June 13, 1963 - Nov. 26, 2014

A million times we needed you, a million times we cried. If love alone would have saved you, you would have never died.

In life we loved you dearly, in death we love you still. In our hearts you hold a place no one else can fill.

A light from our household is gone, a voice from our love is stilled. A place in our vacant home, which never can be filled. We love and miss you.

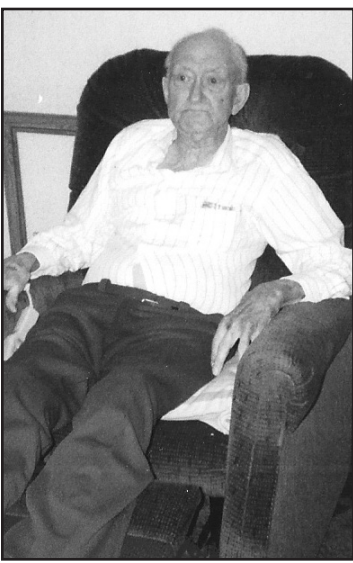

Mom and family

In Memory of Rodell McFall May 26, 2014

In Memory of you on your birthday, June 4, 1924

In Memory of Frank Collins May 24, 1915 - May 19, 2003

It's been 12 years since you left us. Happy 100th birthday in heaven.
